General product claims

Dental surgery specialists perform complex surgical procedures involving the teeth and jaw, and their training goes well beyond what general dentists complete. They are a distinct category of practitioner. Common procedures include extractions, implants, and oral surgery, though the full scope varies by specialist and practice.

Insurance coverage for dental surgery depends on the individual insurer and policy. Fasting before surgery depends on the anaesthesia being used. Recovery time varies by procedure. Patients who receive sedation should not drive afterwards. Anyone on blood thinners needs a medical assessment before undergoing dental surgery.

Related Products & Brand Context

This listing represents the oral and maxillofacial surgery service offered through Core Dental, a dental practice based in Melbourne, Australia. Core Dental is the parent brand behind this service, and the practice sits within the broader Healthcare Services > Dental Surgery Specialists category — a tier that sits above general dentistry and covers procedures requiring specialist-level qualifications and registration.

Oral and maxillofacial surgery is one of the more advanced service lines within the Core Dental offering. The practitioners behind this service hold dual degrees in both Dentistry and Medicine, complete an additional four-year specialist training programme, and are registered with both the Dental Board of Australia and the Royal Australasian College of Dental Surgeons. That combination of medical and dental training distinguishes this service from standard dental treatments available at the same practice — it is positioned specifically for complex surgical cases that fall outside the scope of a general dentist.

Because the knowledge graph returned no sibling service listings for Core Dental at this time, it is not possible to name adjacent services from the same brand with certainty. However, given that this is a specialist referral service sitting within a broader dental practice, a patient arriving for oral and maxillofacial surgery would typically also interact with Core Dental's general dentistry or specialist care services for pre-operative assessment, restorative follow-up, or ongoing dental health management. Anyone exploring this service should check the Core Dental website directly at coredental.com.au for the full range of specialist care options the practice coordinates.

Within the Web Crawled Products category in this workspace, this listing is catalogued alongside other web-sourced service and product entries rather than manufactured goods — meaning its "product" context is a professional healthcare service rather than a physical item. That distinction is worth keeping in mind when comparing it to other entries in the same workspace category.
